was certainty of the integrity of only one.

George N. Coles, United States attorney at Philadelphia, is another blacklisted by the league. The Rev. Home W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania league, reported to McBride that Coles would not do, and eventually took up the matter of the elimination of Coles with Mrs. Willebrandt directly. Eventually Coles resigned and his resignation was promptly accepted.

The league has been active in selection of his successor, having approved some of the candidates and disapproved others in correspondence with McBride for submission to Mrs. Willebrandt.

The Rev. M. S. Poulson, superintendent of the New Jersey league, who not long ago was fined $700 for libeling three state judges, said there had been an improvement in the record of Philip Foreman, United States attorney for New Jersey.

The last time the Jersey league had occasion to enlist the services of Mrs. Willebrandt to relieve a prosecutor unsatisfactory to the dry organization, was in the case of Assistant United States Attorney Van Riper. Dr. Poulson said he complained to Mrs. Willebrandt that Van Riper was not prosecuting with the vigor the league desired.

Mrs. Willebrandt immediately got after Van Riper, who eventually handed in his resignation. Shortly afterward he was appointed to the state bench.
