

Seeks New Angle.

"It is absolutely necessary for the continuation of organized resistance to the violators of the law. It will be our plan to develop a new phase of the issue that will create a new human interest in the fight. The Association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment in its last annual report boasted of the fact that 100 of its trustees controlled $40,000,000,000, and they do not propose to quit the fight until they have repealed the Volstead law and the prohibition amendment.

"Under such conditions it is absolutely absurd for the organized Christian forces of the country to think of anything but going ahead. A committee has been appointed to work out issues that are to be stressed under the new administration."

The committee is Rev. O. Bell Close of Belleville, George S. Hobart and Rev. George G. Hollingshead.

Picked by McBride.

Dr. Close, a member of the advisory board of the league, was named to succeed Mr. Shields as a member of the headquarters committee. Both were elected to fill unexpired terms which end with the annual meeting of the board of directors of the league in January.

The election of Mr. Shields was unanimous by those who attended the meeting. Elwood Hollingshead, president, presented the nomination, which had been made to Mr. Hollingshead by Dr. F. Scott McBride, national superintendent. Dr. McBride did not appear for yesterday's meeting.

Those who attended the meeting besides Mr. Hollingshead were Rev. C. C. Woodruff, secretary; Rev. G. G. Hollingshead, Mr. Hobart, E. R. Halsey, William Cairns, Walter R. Pruder and Dr. C. H. Church. The last is a member of the advisory board and had no vote.

No Comment by Poulson.

Mr. Poulson, who was guest of honor at a dinner given by the headquarters committee last night at the Robert Treat Hotel, said he preferred to make no comment on the election of Mr. Shields. Mr. Poulson did not attend the earlier meeting.

Mr. Shields was toastmaster at the dinner and President Hollingshead, Mr. Woodruff, G. Rowland Munroe, counsel for the league, and Mr. Poulson and others spoke. Letters were read from several members of the committee who were absent. Members of the staff also attended.

Mr. Shields has been engaged in production of non-theatrical motion pictures since his retirement five ago, but he said he had given up work because of the talkies, made the silent film less desirable. Other field was too expensive for theatrical pictures.

Dull Day at United Singers' Grove Enlivened by Visit of Dry Raiders

It was dull yesterday at United Singers' Grove, near Springfield, devoid of politicians, because there were no outings scheduled. Fred Musing of Evergreen avenue, Springfield, township pound keeper, who works at the grove, and Joseph Schwartzman, proprietor, discussed this, that and the weather.

Soon afterwards two men entered the club-house. After they had enjoyed their refreshments, the owner and pound keeper, at their guests' invitation, untied their apron strings, put on their hats and coats and started for Newark.

They were enroute to the office of United States Commissioner A. L. Friedmann to furnish bonds of $1,000 each for selling and possessing liquor. They hadn't recognized their guests as federal prohibition agents. Before the agents left the grove they told Commissioner Friedmann later, they inspected the club-house and found seventeen half-barrels of beer and twenty-seven gallons of wine.

Other federal agents yesterday afternoon raided a saloon at 355-357 Halsey street and arrested Albert Munay on a charge of sale and possession and maintaining a common nuisance. He was held in $1,000 bail, when arraigned before United States Commissioner Joseph F. Holland.

This saloon was raided the night of June 24 by police, and the proprietor Paul Ralino of 92 Quitman street, was held for the grand jury. Police have received no notice of disposition of the case. Fifteen other raids were made the same night but no disposition has been received in any of these cases.

Agents yesterday found two plants partly dismantled. One was on the Fremcke Farm, near Woodcliffe Lake, Bergen County, and the other at an abandoned cement plant at Alpha, Warren County.

At the former place the agents found most of the equipment had been moved away but a quantity of beer and six 1,000-gallon empty vats remained. In Alpha, the agents found a 500-gallon still. Walter E. Brown, assistant administrator in charge of enforcement, is investigating ownership of both places.

The agents raided a saloon at 381 Mulberry street, Newark, last night and arrested the bartender, Joseph Kehoe, who lives at the Salvation Army building.

Clark Issues 100 Padlocks

Federal Judge Clears Calendar of All Such Cases in One Session

TRENTON (AP)—All government padlock cases pending in the United States District Court were disposed of today by Judge William Clark. Injunctions were issued against 100 establishments.

"There is no congestion in the United States District Court in New Jersey," Judge Clark stated, "and I want to call the attention of every one to that fact."
