Turning to Mr. Forman the Court said:

"Have Mr. Tutt in court tomorrow."

A short time before that Nels Miller, of Perth Amboy, was found guilty of liquor law violations and sentenced to serve six months in jail.

HEAVY TERM OPENS IN FEDERAL COURT

Trenton Times 2/9/32

The heavy term of Federal Court opened here today with 54 defendants, accused of liquor law violations, facing Judge William Clark.

Included were Angelo Matina, of East Trenton; James Macarrti and Michael Morrell, also of this city.

Judge Clark changed the entire court procedure, instituted by Judge George M. Bourquin, Montana jurist, and held a trial before sentencing any of the defendants who had pleaded guilty.

The feeling in the crowded court was that Judge Clark was going to "out-Bourquin Bourquin" in penalizing liquor violators.

The first trial was that of Nels Miller, of Perth Amboy, charged with manufacturing and possessing liquor.

WITH FEDERAL BENCH

United States District Attorney Phillip Forman, of Trenton, has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for appointment as Federal Judge in New Jersey, according to reports from Washington.

His name, together with those of Alexander McLeod, of Paterson, chairman of the Passaic County Republican Committee, and Harlan Besson, Jersey City, former Assistant United States Attorney, were brought forward as candidates as soon as the House Judiciary Committee had approved the Perkins Bill creating one additional judgeship for this State.

The Judiciary Committee will report the bill favorably to the House within the next few days.

The Senate has before it a bill sponsored by Senator Hamilton F. Kean, of New Jersey, creating two new judgeships in the State. This is under consideration by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The Perkins Bill would make permanent the judgeship vacated by the death of William A. Runyon, of Plainfield. Runyon was apointed after passage of the 1922 act creating a number of temporary judgeships.

Aents Tackle Del... Saints Set Rec...

With their record thus far looking like anything but that of a championship team, the Kent Tigers will attempt to better it slightly tonight when they take on the Prospect Democrats at Junior No. 4. Having won but one game in the second half of the current race, the Kents are anxious to chalk up a victory tonight, and, in fact, the game is regarded in a crucial nature by them. The Democrats and Bengals will have a new team mark at which to shoot tonight. Last night the St. Hedwig Catholic Club ran wild to overwhelm Holy Cross by a 79-27 tally. The victory tightened the Saints' hold on second place.

In an effort to put his team on the winning side of the ledger, Sarky Salvatore, Kent manager, will have his best line-up in action against the strong Prospect club.

TWO-MONTH TERM GIVEN AFTER RAID

Judge Clark Hands Out Severe Penalties for Dry Offenses

TWO TRENTONIANS ORDERED TO CELL

Judge William Clark sentenced a woman to serve two months in jail for liquor law violations when she appeared for sentence in the United States District Court today.

The prisoner, Mrs. Anna Newmaster, of Pinehurst, was accused of possession of liquor and maintaining a nuisance. Government officials said she operated a roadhouse which was raided by agents.

A tearful plea by the woman failed to stave off a sentence. She said that her husband was separated from her and that he is now in the Army.

The sentence was one of the many imposed by Judge Clark in the afternoon session of the court. Most of the penalties were heavy.

Sam Widlansky, of Elizabeth, charged with manufacturing and possessing liquor, was sentenced to serve six months in jail. A similar term was meted out to Abe Levin, of Bradley Beach.

William Iannuzelli, of Philadelphia, and Pasquale Bracarelli, of Williamstown, were each sentenced to serve 60 days in jain for liquor law violations.

Herbert J. Lee, of Jersey City, was also given 60 days in jail for possession of liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

Thomas Stretch, of Somers Point, was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail for liquor violations, while Joseph Weintraub, also of Somers Point, and accused in the same case, was given a term of 10 days.

Joe DeMarco, Tony Altamonte and Vito Laterra, all of Newark, were each sentenced to serve 60 days in jail, after they had pleaded guilty to liquor law violations.

A similar term was given Anthony Palumbo, Northfield, charged with transportation of liquor. John Wassman, of Hoboken, was fined $25 for possession of liquor.

Jail for Trentonians

Michael Bash, of 59 Girard Avenue, was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail also for liquor law violations. Sentence will not be started until Bash has recovered from an illness.

Percy Potts, of 39 Ellsworth Avenue, employed as a bartender for Bash at the Girard Avenue address, was sentenced to serve 10 days in jail.

Giuseppe Tardone and Vincenzo DeVincenso, butchers of Camden, were each fined $100 for violations of the meat inspection act.

Vaughn Cramer, of Atlantic City, was fined $25 for liquor law violations.

Joseph Ross, of Newark, was given a ten-day sentence for violations of the liquor laws, and Joseph Goolick, of South Plainfield, was placed on probation for a similar violation.

Charged with forging his signature to money orders, William Carlson, 25, of Montclair, was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail. Carlson's plea for mercy failed to have any effect on the court.

BARTENDER JAILED; LOST AS DETECTIVE

Percy Baker, of Newark, has been a bartender for 25 years. He told that to Judge Clark in the United States District Court here when he appeared to plead guilty to liquor law violations.

"Your honor," said his counsel, "give this man a chance. He wants to be a detective. In fact he has his application in with the Pennsylvania Railroad to become a detective."

"Not from any help that I can give," retorted Judge Clark severely. "I don't think that the Pennsylvania Railroad wants a man of that type." Then the court sentenced Baker to serve 60 days in the County Jail.
