Young's Raids At Atlantic City Startle Resort

New Dry Chief, Calling Sudden Activity 'Routine,' Issues Edict to Speakeasies

Liquor Sellers Point Out Foe 'Is Still Quite Young'

Special to the Herald Tribune

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 20.—Robert B. Young, Atlantic City's new chief of prohibition agents, who has startled the beach resort this week by the suddenness and thoroughness of his raids on speakeasies, issued an ultimatum today that he would raid any place where liquor was sold. Atlantic City is not accustomed to such tactics by its prohibition agents, even if Mr. Young is. The word seems to be "to wait and see," older residents pointing out that the new chief still is quite young.

Mr. Young denies he is starting a new regime. "These raids are nothing out of the ordinary," he said today. "They come under the head of routine work. When I know a place where liquor is being sold, it is raided. We will raid any place, big or little, in Atlantic City, where liquor is sold.

"No Orders From Washington"

"I have no knowledge of any orders from Washington or the district headquarters demanding sudden activity," he went on in answer to a question as to whether the government had decided to clamp down on liquor over the Washington Birthday week end. "The raids here are conducted in exactly the same way I have worked during my seven years I have been in the department." He denied that under-cover men were used to make "buys" in the four hotels, three prominent restaurants and several small places raided on Wednesday and Friday. Only his regular force participated, he said.

While owners are said to have remarked that "something will be done about all these raids in Washington" and that Mr. Young's stay in Atlantic City would be brief, Mr. Young came back with the statement he had rented a house for a year.

"Sore at Me, Naturally"

"Naturally, they are sore at me, but I can't help that," he continued. "My job is to dry up this town, and I am going to do it. I am a prohibitionist personally, as well as professionally. I have never taken a drink of whisky in my life. I regard it as an evil, and I find personal satisfaction in the enforcement of what I consider an admirable law."

Mr. Young has been at Atlantic City since October. Previously he was at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Newark. Since he began confiscating furniture and fixtures in the places raided last week Mr. Young has filled a good-sized storehouse. In the mean time, the majority of Atlantic City is "just waiting" to see how long it lasts.
